

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is directed at an exhaust flange assembly comprising flanges formed by powder metallurgical methods for attachment to exhaust pipes. The first flange preferably comprising a first surface having a cavity and a pipe attachment surface opposite the first surface. The second flange comprises a sealing surface having a shape complementary to the cavity of the first flange and a pipe attachment surface opposite the sealing surface.